Stressing on the importance of encouraging creativity in students, Madhu Grover, head of the English department, Lady Shri Ram College (LSR), adds that initiatives like these are intellectually generous and imaginative. "It inspires, encourages, and even compels young minds to make greater critical and creative leaps in this age of possibilities."

Shyamolie Singh, a second year student, studying English literature at LSR and winner of the DSC Collegiate Writing Contest says that she enjoyed being a part of this contest because she could write on a topic that was close to her heart. "I went through poetry and works of different writers. I am glad I could be a part of this contest because I strongly believe that going to college is not just about books and studying. There's a lot more to college life. At this stage of our lives, we must try and get exposure to different things and make the best of college life," she says.

Singh attended the Jaipur Literature Festival over the weekend as part of winning the contest.

Hybrid energy

Priyanka Sehgal, team captain, fourth year, ECE, Indira Gandhi Delhi Technical University for Women, showcased a smart grid project in an exhibition organised by Power Grid Corporation of India. She shares her experience

The team with a working model of the smart grid project

The most fascinating aspect of the smart grid technology is the use of renewable resources. Hybrid micro grid is a stand-alone electricity supplying grid, which harnesses energy from renewable sources such as wind, solar, biomass and battery (for back-up) and supplies it to a remote location where it is not feasible to connect with the main grid. In times of crises, the grid will not be dependant on utilities and will continue to supply electricity.

To construct a working model of the grid, we divided all the devices and equipment in two categories — critical and non-critical load based on the importance of where the electricity was needed. Electricity to the critical load would be supplied through battery. In our model, we used a software — LabView, which helped us to acquire data, do the algorithm, and send the command.

For us, researching, compiling information and ideas on the smart grid technology took time. Our biggest challenge was to choose a software, which was user-friendly as well as suitable for the project. We knew that even though the micro grid is not a replacement for the national grid, it worked wonders in communities and regions that have adequate renewable resources.

In the future, we would like to design a micro grid model that takes real-time data and make a smart metre.

RCIGDTUW successfully organized a blood donation camp, which was set up inside the university campus. A bus from Rotary Blood Bank along with a team of doctors and their assistants helped the students to donate their blood. The drive received around more than 70 registrations and we were able to collect 40 units of blood.

RANG DE

As part of "Rang De", the rotaractors from RCIGDTUW, along with the officials of other clubs, went to Pahal NGO. The visit was a memorable experience for all as we got together, with brushes and colors in our hands, to paint a room all by ourselves. Knowing that we turned some shabby old walls to a vibrant room for kids to study brings a happiness that's beyond words.

ANIMAL CARE

Members of RCIGDTUW visited many animal shelters, like FRIENDICOES and Sanjay Gandhi Animal Care Shelter. Rotractors spent quality time with cute four-legged animals via walks and celebration of their birthdays. RCIGDTUW also donated raw food item that dogs, cats and other animals in the shelter can consume.

SANCHAY

RCIGDTUW organized a quirky awareness program "Sarang" on the need to save water under our "water and sanitation project". Under this program, a Rotaractor dressed as a peaceful water diva, was sitting in our campus with an empty bucket asking the people to fill her bucket with the water they had saved. Via this, program we were able to generate awareness about a grave problem and sparked off a discussion among the youth through this program.

LEAP: KILKARI

LEAP aims at the sustainable development of a community in the field of education. Focusing on one locality of New Delhi, that is Kashmere Gate. The project targets literacy of children and adults, skill development in the underprivileged and privileged section of the society along with community participation. The project included movie screenings, meaningful discussions and teaching important lessons via games. It was a method to truly reach the community.

TEACH

TEACH is an interactive series of Web development coaching launched by RCIGDTUW in order to teach the students one of the blooming fields of computer science and promote e-education simultaneously. This series helps girls of government school to make them eligible for UX/UI designer jobs at various startups and data entry jobs. It also aided in the preparation of class XII boards. As these skills are required immensely, it will also help the girls to grab a data entry or front-end job which could change their life.

LEAP: SOCIAL LIBRARY

It is an event that encourages honest, free and unbiased conversation between individuals. 5 human books were invited from a plethora of backgrounds. Participants engaged in a non-judgmental conversation with the books about their lives and that of the books as well. These conversations prove to be cathartic and therapeutic for the participants. It provided a new outlook, and a more positive perspective on life.
